

Frequently Asked Questions: Neurodevelopmental Disabilities
(FAQs related to Neurodevelopmental Disabilities Program Requirements effective July 1, 2020)
Review Committee for Neurology
ACGME

Question	Answer
The Learning and Working Environment
What licensed independent practitioners can contribute to residents' education? [Program Requirement: VI.A.2.a).(1)]	Licensed practitioners who may participate in the education of residents include nurse practitioners who should be licensed in the state and have appropriate credentials at the hospital in which they are seeing patients.
What does the Review Committee consider an optimal clinical workload? [Program Requirement: VI.E.1.]	The program director must make an assessment of the learning environment, including patient safety, complexity of patient illness/condition, available support services, and a resident's level of knowledge, skills, and abilities, when determining the clinical workload for each resident.
Who should be included in the interprofessional teams? [Program Requirement: VI.E.2.]	Nurses, pharmacists, physician assistants, social workers, and occupational, physical, and speech therapists, are examples of professional personnel who may be part of interprofessional teams on which residents must work as members.